The puzzle I'm thinking of is given in the following diagram: The boxes are to be filled with Popsicle sticks, with sticks touching if and only if the boxes they belong to share a wall. The orange lines draw the boxes apart, and the orange dash marks the boxes that are not touching. An isolated box gets a black box (or left empty) instead. To fill the puzzle, you start with any box to be filled with one Popsicle stick, and take a second piece of stick to any empty box. As long as there are no "obstructions" on your path through the boxes (i.e. no obstacle that would prevent a Popsicle stick from touching with any other stick), you can take as many sticks as you wish. How many Popsicle sticks are required to be placed to fill this puzzle? A: The answer is: For every box that shares a wall with another box, you need three sticks. The key is: To fill the puzzle, you start with any box to be filled with one Popsicle stick, and take a second piece of stick to any empty box. Q: How do I read in data from a text file into a JList? I'm using NetBeans and I'm trying to read in data from a text file that has an address on one line and an asset number on the next. The data in the text file would look like this: I am a text file that I want to be able to read in. 3e33713323
